

Preservant Introduces Personal Contact Tracing (PCT) SM

Our Personal Contact Tracing (PCT) SM tool is designed to help you avoid exposure to the Covid-19 virus by presenting the most likely sources of exposure to consider for both yourself and those with whom you either have, or likely will, come in contact.

Safeguards and Symptoms Management

Covid-19 and its variants are killers. They are nothing to gamble with. To address the needs and fears surrounding the Covid-19 pandemic, Preservant is offering virtual/remote visits with you, by video or by phone, during which we will identify ways to protect you and your loved ones from coronavirus infection and other health risks, in the privacy and safety of your own residence.

Our Covid-19 consultation is designed to mitigate uncertainty and reduce the fear that exists around that infectious disease. Results of ongoing in-depth research, conducted by healthcare authorities such as CDC (www.cdc.gov), NIH (www.nih.com) and WHO (www.who.org), in conjunction with our innovative insights, will be the primary sources of the information to be shared with our clients.

We even offer to join you on your video calls with your doctors, both at home and during your in-person visits. We remain available for you throughout your ordeal.

Given our mission and innovative risk prevention insights, Preservant has a role to play in ensuring that clear and concise advice and safeguards for protecting our clients from the novel coronavirus/Covid-19 and its variants are disseminated, during the pandemic.

Appropriate consideration will be given to our use of the internet and to the need to comply with HIPAA guidelines.
